reach the church, but the tide rose too quickly and the old building passed once more beneath the troubled surface of the sea.

From Cleveland, Ohio, telegraph wires carried a modern version of the Damon and Pythias story. A year ago Frank A. Selberling, president of the Selberling Rubber Company, and the guiding hand in the original success of the great Goodyear Rubber Company with which he is now associated, was on the brink of financial ruin. But he had a friend, Edgar B. Davis, New York financier who had known Selberling for twenty years. A number of years ago Davis, in the oil business, was broke, but he thought he had chances of striking oil. He appealed to Selberling who then was a multimillionaire. Selberling loaned him $57,000. Davis struck oil and sold out to the Standard Oil Company for twelve million dollars. In 1920, Selberling, out of the Goodyear Company, and virtually broke, organized his own concern. The company struggled along for six years. All the time Davis was watching the difficulties of his old friend, and when he saw a crisis approaching he loaned Selberling $500,000 in cash, and underwrote his notes for $5,000,000. In 1927 Selberling's stock soared and returned a net profit of $1,356,000. A few days ago Selberling, once more possessor of a fortune, paid Davis back, and released him as guarantor of the notes. Davis refused to accept any interest.

C. of C. Dinner Monday Night which Mr. Neill received were written on the ballot, as his name did not appear thereon. Mr. Neill requested that his name be left off as he felt that he had served as a director of the Chamber of Commerce since the inception of the organization and did not wish to be re-elected.

Mr. Brown, speaker at Monday's dinner meeting, in his official capacity probably keeps his finger more continuously on the pulse of organized business activity than any other individual in the United States. He travels an average of 50,000 miles annually, visiting all sections of the country, and is consulted by executive officers of commercial organizations in the largest cities, and the smallest towns and in every variety of industry.

As a result of his broad observation he expresses the conviction that the commercial organization and trade association have hardly passed beyond the formative stage and that the co-operative method of meeting and solving the larger problems of business is on the threshold of marked expansion and development. This, he believes, is due to the widening radius of activity which extends beyond the limitations of the individual business man or even the single industry.

"The striking characteristic of the American business man in the eyes of impartial foreign observers," he says, "is his capacity for organization, for team work in overcoming common obstacles and in solving common problems. As far as we have gone in that direction in the past quarter of a century, there is every reason to believe that this typically American movement is constantly gaining momentum and that it will go forward much more rapidly in the next quarter of a century. We are emerging from the experimental stage and are now developing on a large scale the methods by which the principle of co-operative group action can be practically put into effect."

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, with which Mr. Brown is connected, is the largest business organization of its kind in the world. It is the business man's representative and spokesman at the national capital. It aims to safeguard business against unwise economic legislation and at the same time to keep before congress and the government departments the viewpoints of business on things of economic and industrial importance to the country.

The national chamber was created fifteen years ago at the instance of President Taft and his administration to meet the need for a body which could obtain and present to the government the considered viewpoint of business on economic questions. Until that time business in the United States had not been represented in a central organization.

Today the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is recognized as the national spokesman for business. It speaks for 1559 business organizations all over the country; these organizations have an underlying membership of more than $57,000 of the country's business men.

The new home of the national chamber, which houses the headquarters staff, is one of the finest buildings in Washington. It was erected a few years ago on the site of what was once the home of Daniel Webster, and faces Lafayette Park, opposite the White House. This building is known as the home of American business and serves as a clearing house for all sorts of business information.

District Circus for Endeavorers Tomorrow Night

The Christian Endeavor District Circus will be held in the Central Evangelical church tomorrow night, Jan. 13. Each society in the district will put on a "stunt" and the winner will go to Whittier in February to compete in the county circus.

When should I plant my garden? Is the question. Any time, now, is the answer. Worrell, the Hardware Man, 1517 Cabrillo avenue has the seeds, the tools and everything that goes to start a garden with, and when you get the garden planted then you will need hose, sprinklers, and many little things for the house such as paint, varnish, floor wax. Remember to bring along your shears to have them ground. FREE—Adv.

Kerchool!
The sneeze is one way nature has of warning you that a cold is coming on.

NYAL LAXACOLD

Tablets taken at the first indication of a cold usually give prompt relief. Laxacold is a tonic laxative. It moves the bowels freely but gently and proper bowel action is very essential in ridding the system of a cold. Keep a box handy.

TWENTY-FIVE TABLETS—TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

COLD SEASON

WE don't need to TELL you that this is the COLD season because the CHANCES are that you have YOURSELF and are NEGLECTING it just like about NINETY-FIVE out of every HUNDRED other people do and it may be ONLY A COLD but it's mighty EASY for a cold to go from THAT stage to a BAD cold and then from that to people walking SLOW behind you. So we wish you'd REMEMBER that we have 47 varieties of COLD BUSTERS here at this STORE of which we RECOMMEND Nyals and ELEVEN others, or if you will just come in and DESCRIBE your cold to us we'll FIT you with a remedy in apple pie ORDER.

Moral: Neglecting a cold is like throwing away a lighted match. It may go out and it MAY start something. "GEORGE."

Bandits Active In Lomita Territory

Two masked men, one of whom displayed a gun, robbed Mr. and Mrs. Amos Clapp of about $20 Wednesday night. Mrs. Clapp saved a sum of about the same amount, which was hidden in a china cup by setting a glass of water on top of the mug and carrying both away.

The robbers entered the Clapps' barbecue stand, which is located at the corner of Governor Ave. and Anaheim Blvd. about 11 o'clock, when the proprietors were alone.

Police from Wilmington and San Pedro were called who, with a finger print expert, are working on the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Clapp were robbed about two years ago, losing $70.

Glen J. Smith, Walteria, reported to Constable Taber that his Studebaker car had been stolen from his garage. After several hours, the car was returned, and the supposition is that joy-riders had made use of the machine.

Teddy Luck spent several days recently with his brother Hubert at the Ted Wertz home on Cabrillo avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gilbert attended a bridge dinner Saturday at the home of Mrs. A. W. Gilbert of Los Angeles.
